Planning Invasive Plant Control on Large Parcels

A Workshop for Landowners

This is a hands-on workshop to help landowners strategically plan for the management of invasives.

What will we do?

Workshop participants will:

- Learn about the elements of a successful management plan for invasive plants
- Find out which invasives have a greater innate ability to become a pest
- Create an individualized, prioritized plan for invasives on your property
- Know where to find information about invasive control methodologies
- Network with other landowners

What should I bring?

To get the most out of this workshop, we recommend that you prepare the following information about your property and bring it with you:

- List of invasive plants known to occur there
- Natural resource goals and objectives
- Information about important natural resources and human use

Who should attend?

This workshop is designed for owners of large tracts of land, including but not limited to: private landowners, land trusts, conservation commissions, non-profit organizations, and government agencies. Individuals and groups are both welcome to come and work on a plan for your property.
